

Dr. Steve Rappleyea is a dynamic force in education, bringing 36 years of experience and advanced degrees in psychology, school psychology, and educational leadership to every room he enters. As a statewide MTSS-I coach with the New York State MTSS-I Center at the University at Albany, and as a private consultant, Steve collaborates with districts across the country to design powerful, student-centered support systems that actually work. As an Educational Engineer and MTSS Evangelist, he's observed in over 1,000 classrooms and consulted with more than 40 districts—translating research into bold, practical strategies that drive real change for kids.